

Hi %%First-Name%%,

Last weekend, the Compass365 and General Networks team came together to mark a milestone 40 years in the making. We celebrated four decades of helping organizations manage the information that runs their business, of building relationships that keep clients coming back year after year and staying ahead of the technology curve without ever losing sight of what actually delivers value.

That kind of longevity only happens if you keep evolving, and the same is true of the Microsoft platforms we build on. Just as Compass365 has grown and changed to keep serving clients better, Microsoft's technology has grown right along with it. That's why it's worth paying attention when older platforms reach the end of the road: support for SharePoint Server 2016 and 2019 has ended, along with InfoPath 2013 client, and InfoPath Form Services in SharePoint Online has been retired. In their place, Microsoft 365, SharePoint Server Subscription Edition, and Power Platform have matured into the tools built for how organizations actually work today.

We took last weekend to celebrate the people, partnerships, and work that got us here, and we're just as energized about helping clients navigate this next wave of change. Explore the resources below to learn more about our history and reach out if it's time to talk about your own path forward.
